Al and Sonja--

In our discussion today with San Jacinto River Fleet (SJRF) regarding their facility and operations, we were informed of certain procedural sensitivities unique to dealing with an Office of Homeland Security, secured facility--namely, the time it may take to push an access agreement through their approval process. In light of this new information, EPA feels it is necessary to afford Respondents additional time to get an access agreement in place. Although there is no upcoming work scheduled for the SJRF property, EPA feels this is an appropriate precaution should future sampling or other response measures on the property be necessary under the Administrative Order on Consent and/or the Unilateral Administrative Order for Remedial Investigation/Feasibility Study.

Please feel free to give me a call with any questions or clarifications
